Great Czech Victory !

The following is a report from the front!

The biggest Czech propaganda progress in the history of NSEC & NSDAP/AO occurred in October! The first Czech TV channel "Czech TV1" ran a news story about NSEC & NSDAP/AO! This channel (since the Czech Republic only has four national channels) is watched by MILLIONS of viewers every day! The late evening news report is regularly watched by approximately by 3.6 million (out of 10 million citizens) people! Since the news on all the channels respect each other's times, no one could miss the report. The report was several minutes long. The NSEC & NSDAP/AO sites were both shown on full-screen! The report talked about the close cooperation between NSDAP/AO and NSEC while zooming on the text line under the Czech Lion with swastika that says that we are official allies.

Then it followed by talking about the NSEC and the NSEC store and that people could get every sort of materials there such as books, flags and regalia, then the incredible happened - they actually surfed on the flags section of the store and showed the whole (!) assortment on full-screen! A paid commercial in this length would cost a great amount of money! Then followed a speech by a police officer that said that they can not do anything about it, since the server is in the USA! After him, a representative of Czech Jews said that all this was sad, but since Americans worship free speech above all, it is almost impossible to do anything about it. The report then said that some countries have already tried to put YOU on trial but that it has not helped - while saying that, comrade Lauck's picture was zoomed almost to a full screen and the report ended...

What do you say about that?! After years of hard work, this is the beginning of our reward! I think that this puts us definitely (together with the report on extremism) as the number one NS organization in this country as education and propaganda is concerned! We have currently about 40 000 main-page visitors and hits peek up to 20 000/month.

Sieg Heil! Together we are strong!

Left: The logo used by our Czech comrades. Their victory had another interesting result: in October the number of NSDAP/AO web-site hits from the Czech Republic was even greater than from the whole of the United States of America!

News from the Reich

Yes, 59% of the people throughout Europe said in a recent survey that they consider ISRAEL the biggest threat to world peace!!! Of course now the ministers are all shocked and ashamed, for example BERLUSCONI from Italy; he called up Israel and somehow "begged for pardon" for this - truly unexpected! - result of the survey! The establishment is now looking for reasons; it is said the questions of the survey were "suggestive questions" and hence manipulated... Yeah, sure... Has the EU itself become an "anti-Semitic devil", or what?!

Largest National Socialist demonstration since World War Two recently took place in Sweden! Several right-winged groups torch column. Over 2000 people participated, including many comrades from Germany. Now the Swedish government is shocked that its estimate (800 Neo-nazis, 2000 pro-NS people in Sweden) is not correct, and that the real number is presumably higher. It suspects a group called "Legion Wasa" wants to form a "private army".

ALESSANDRA MUSSOLINI, the Duce's granddaughter, left the post-fascist Alleanza Nazionale since its president, FINI, excused himself in Israel (even wearing a kike cap!) for the "crimes of the fascist regime" towards the Jews. She wants to form a new party now.

The PC (= "political correctness") is now even invading the PC (= personal computer) sector: Some sales manager in Los Angeles demands to ban the labeling of hardware with "master" and "slave" (regarding hard drives). NO JOKE! Maybe he'll also demand to ban the "cleansing" of parasites/viruses and worms that infect the computers...

The anti-Semitism debate is going on: A local CDU-Politician and professor, KNÜTTEL, is also said to be a "anti-Semite" as he demanded "street fighting" etc. as the ARD show "Panorama" reported. Also, the small town near Fulda, where HOHMANN (who was today expelled from the CDU after massive media pressure for calling the Jews as "perpetrators") was in charge, the people are interviewed and show strong sympathies for Hohmann, citizens of ALL ages and classes say that it's a dirty outrage that one can't say the simple truth in Germany! That's exactly what we want!!! I couldn't believe (at least) some people finally wake up!!! The media, on the other hand, is outraged... You can imagine that the large newspapers now start a great agitation action against such smaller, but RESPECTABLE towns!

Plus: The CDU loses prestige because of firing Hohmann as Merkel herself (and the whole CDU staff, too) said immediately after the "incident" (Hohmann's speech from October 3rd) that he would NOT have to fear any consequences after excusing and not repeating such statements... Hohmann did beg for pardon... But the massive pressure didn't leave any chance...

The DEGUSSA company now will indeed deliver the anti-graffiti protection for the Berlin Holohoax memorial; the Jews were angry as they learned the company's connection to IG Farben, the producer of Zyklon B. But - funnily enough! - choosing another company would cost the Jews 3,2 Millions extra, so the Jewish "business sense" was stronger and Degussa is accepted... Also, the Berlin Jews offended in this question even an American Jew (I think Eisenmann is his name) who said their discussion was hysteric and not ok... Well, our "German(-speaking)" CHOSEN ONES are still the most aggressive ones... (Suppose they suffer from all the recent "shocks" due to all the "anti-Semites" around...)

Another anti-Semitism scandal: Mick Flick, grandson of the known Flick with his company in WWII, is presenting his art collection in Berlin, the Schröder government invited him and thank him and all... Just the Jews cry, because they say his fortune was built up by Jewish "forced laborers" and that he did never show any "regret" for the "crimes" his grandfather had done...

All this shows, how the "anti-Semitism club" (just like the "Auschwitz club") is now INFLATIONARY used to destroy people...

There's really an upcoming "anti-Semitism debate" in Germany: Many articles search reasons for the latest (even pan-European!) incidents. The authors of such articles are somehow frustrated.

Setting the Record Straight : A National Socialist Account of the Second World War

by A. V. Schaerffenberg

Italy's tragedy was Balbo's death on June 28th, the day he was to begin operations in Libya. His Early, the Axis still dominated the sky. When that changed and Rommel's supplies were reduced to a trickle, the fight became increasingly lopsided.

plane was shot down by Italian anti-aircraft, either by accident or design. A dedicated Fascist, pro-British traitors in the royal House of Savoy may have ordered his assassination. He was succeeded by the Army Chief-of-Staff, Marshal Rodolfo Graziani, who launched the Mussolini-Balbo Offensive on July 4. It instantly over-ran the key posts at Kassala and Gallabat on the Sudan borders with Eritrea and Abyssinia, from which Italian forces swept into Somaliland.

On August 17, the British were Dunkirked a second time, when they were evacuated by Royal Navy ships from the port of Berbera. A few hours later, all of Somaliland fell to the Italians. Their swift and far-ranging advance through the desert allowed them to threaten the southern entrance of the Red Sea, seriously jeopardizing England's oil supplies in the Middle East, and her vital line of communication with India and the Far East through the Suez Canal.

These victories were in large measure assisted by the Italians' technological superiority in desert warfare, particularly their Sahaina. Ideally suited for combat through Libya's trackless sands, the heavily armed (with 20mm Soluthun and 47/32 anti-tank guns, together with 13.2 mm heavy machine-guns), long-ranging (800-kilometer) patrol-car was a design far ahead of its time. The British fielded nothing like the Sahaina, which backed up Italian tanks, and often replaced them more successfully.

The "cheap and easy victory" Churchill felt sure he could win over the despised Italians had blown up in his face like an exploding cigar. In the very midst of the Battle of Britain, when her every resource was pressed to the limit, he dispatched a large convoy carrying abundant munitions, artillery, aircraft, and 150 tanks to his beleaguered forces in North Africa. Since the Italian Navy still dominated the Mediterranean Sea, the convoy had to be diverted the long, time-consuming way--around the Cape of Good Hope. It docked at Port Said more than a month after setting out.

Setting the Record Straight

With their capture of Somaliland, the Italians suddenly halted their advance to replenish supplies. "Time is working against us," Mussolini urged Marshal Graziani. "The loss of Egypt will be the coup de grace for Great Britain." He knew that Italian supremacy in manpower and materiel was only temporary. A fat convoy was on its way that would tip the scales in the enemy's favor. The moment to resume the attack was now or never. But Graziani complained of the heat and of the anti-tank guns that awaited his armor; he suggested the offensive be renewed in October. "That would be too late!" the Duce countered. He agreed that the struggle was difficult, and that losses would probably be high. But the Italians must not lose their momentum now. 1940 was their best and perhaps only chance to succeed. Still, Graziani hesitated, while Mussolini fumed helplessly and sent him more supplies.

Finally re-equipped with additional armor and Fiat CR-42 fighters, the reluctant Marshal began the invasion of Egypt on September 13. His five divisions with 200 tanks stormed across the border, taking Sollum, while the British Western Desert Force, consisting of the 7th Armored and 4th Indian Divisions, fell back. Just two days later, the Italians had penetrated sixty miles, over-running Sidi Barrani. At the height of their success, Graziani halted again, this time to build a series of fortified camps, allowing General Wavell, commanding British forces, time to organize his own counter-attack. The Duce was furious, and demanded the advance be resumed at once. Incredibly, Graziani refused. But because he was protected by the House of Savoy, the Marshal could not be fired. Time, as Mussolini argued, was running out.

By September 24, the heavy-laden convoy reached Britain's Western Desert Force, which was now fully supplied with weapons and munitions. Yet, Wavell was himself slow to launch his offensive, which would not be ready until late autumn. Even days after that December counter-offensive got under way, his Australian Division was still unfit for combat. Had Graziani continued his hitherto successful march into Egypt, instead of stopping to construct defenses at Sidi Barrani, the North African Campaign would have undoubtedly climaxed in an Italian victory before Wavell's preparations were completed. Unfortunately, Balbo was not in command to maintain the initiative, which was passing to the enemy.

Even if Graziani resumed the offensive in October, as he planned, he could have still over-run the British, catching them unready and ill-organized. But the Marshall changed his mind. He took months strengthening and expanding his fortified camps in and from Sidi Barrani. While they pinned-down the enemy's anticipated attack, the Italian 10th Army would resume the offensive. Mussolini, in yielding to Graziani for additional supplies, had spoiled him. It was much easier and safer to hold up behind the fortified camps, accumulating supplies, than to risk an assault against English anti-tank guns in which the British also enjoyed numerical superiority.

In fact, Wavell's counter-offensive had been seriously thrown off in late October by Churchill's insistence to support the Greeks fighting an Italian invasion. Mussolini had invaded Greece to divert British supplies and forces from North Africa. There he continued to fortify Graziani, hoping the reluctant marshal would seize the opportunity by renewing offensive operations against his divided and diluted opponent.

To the outrage of not only General Wavell, England's Minister of War Anthony Eden and the Cabinet, Churchill rushed head-long into the Duce's trap, and sapped the British Desert Army by robbing its units to serve in Greece. The rotund Prime Minister almost gutted that Army by diverting many of its men and materiel to the Aegean, offering a superb opportunity for Graziani to attack. Instead, he frittered away his last chance by continuing to wait for the British behind his fortified camps.

At last, on December 9, warships of the Royal Navy heavily bombarded Sidi Barrani and Maktala, as the 4th Indian Division took forts at Nibeiwa and Tummar East and West. But the attackers paid dearly for these conquests. On just the first day of fighting, the British lost fourteen tanks to Tummar's defenders, and warriors of the Fascist Maletti Group knocked out 35 of 57 attacking Matilda tanks. Meanwhile, the 7th Armoured Division cut off Sofafi and Rabia, from which, however, the Italians staged a successful break-out.

Until now, their losses had been light, with some 3,500 fatalities. But Wavell's counter-offensive swallowed up 38,000 prisoners, 237 artillery and 73 tanks, reducing Italian holdings in Egypt to Sollum, Fort Capuzzi and Sidi Omar. Graziani's men put up a determined defense at the vital port of Bardia, beginning on December 21. Out-numbered, out-

I Work in a Work Service Camp

The following is an excerpt from the book #546 An American Sees the New Germany which can be purchased for $10.00.

Voluntary work service in the New Germany has always been of great interest to me. As soon as in 1933 I had, as already mentioned, viewed a work service camp as well as the work service's leadership school in Potsdam. I was theoretically informed of the purpose, meaning and goal of this important institution.

I had already recognized that the youth of the New Germany were united in their desire to create a new social order in Germany from the temporary chaos in which the world found itself. They wanted to create a new, better future for their country.

After I had seen both of these work service institutions, I put a high value on myself really, practically working along. I wished to learn about camp life firsthand and, through personal contact with work service men, to gain a truthful picture of the general camp spirit and the feelings of the men. In short, I wanted to live among them as a comrade and feel like they do.

I submitted an application to allow me, as a foreigner, to spend several days in a camp among the work service men and to participate in their daily routine and perform the same services as they. In other words, I wanted to work with these people "as one of them". My application was approved and I was assigned to service camp 93/3 in Potsdam that had just been opened in November of the previous year. This camp has aroused the interest of many foreigners, because it is not far from Berlin. Representatives from many nations have visited this camp, for example the King and Queen of Siam, the Swedish Admiral Lindesbran, a group of American Baptists and the president of the Greek student union in Athens.

It is known that work camps are visited by many foreigners. I wanted more than just a superficial view as a visitor. I wanted to work there myself in order to learn the conditions as they really are. I discovered the following:

From the very start, I want to mention that no restrictions were placed on me - nor did I get any special treatment. I reported for service and everything proceeded right away! First I received my work cloths and sport cloths. Then I was assigned to a sleeping hall and received a comfortable iron bed with mattress, linen, blanket etc. just like each of the other 220 other people in the camp. Each sleeping hall has 16 beds. Each man has his own clothes locker with a card with his name and occupation. After I was welcomed as a "comrade", I assembled with the other men and marched off to work with them. This is the daily routine in the work service camp:

We are awakened at 5:00 AM. The men get up and do some group exercises in the fresh morning air. Returning to the sleeping hall, each man makes his bed. The hall is tidied up and put in shape, followed by the morning toilet. Very fresh, very awake - and already very hungry - we sit down for breakfast. It consists of coffee, tea or meat brew and bread with marmalade and butter. At the same time we prepare our second breakfast to take along. Consumed during a half hour break from work in the morning, it consists of "butter pastries" with sausage and coffee. At 06:15 AM we are called to assembly and inspection. We receive our spades, stand at parade attention and then march to our workplace that is half an hour away from the camp in Potsdam.

The workers had already cut down trees at this work-site to make room for the construction of a group of new single family houses. Thirty of them are already occupied, mostly by war veterans but also by the unemployed. Some workers were told to prepare bricks for use in alleys. Others excavated soil for the construction of new houses. Eleven other men and I were given the task of excavating soil from one of the roads near the houses to create a ditch to serve as canalization. We worked with our spades from 7:00 AM until 09:30. Then we took a short break for our second breakfast with sausage, bread and coffee. At 10:00 AM the leader's whistle called us back to work. Now I was attached to a group of twelve men. We had to shovel soil into trolleys. These trolleys were then pushed by us — three men per trolley — about 100 meters along a rail. The soil was dumped onto a damn and then shoveled onto the grounds of one of the houses, where it was used to level the ground. We worked like bees until 1:00 PM. Everybody was in the best spirits. Many jokes were told, so there was much laughter. At 1:00 PM we again assembled in front of our leader and returned to our camp. I should have mentioned earlier that we always sang during our march as is usual for Germans marching in columns. They sing while they march regardless of the weather. The exact song determines the pace of the march and simultaneously fends off the feeling of exhaustion. The spirit of satisfaction and contentment about the performed work and the fulfilled duties of the work service, yes, a sense of joy and happiness in general expressed itself in this singing. This made a strong impression on me. The joyous feeling spread to the many passersby whom we met and who greeted us with comrade-like calls. After our return we were greeted by Oberfeldmeister Schobbert, put away our spades, cleaned our boots and had time for a shower and thorough cleaning. At 2:00 PM there was the midday meal. Each day it was generous and diverse: one day there was stewed steak, another day beef with potatoes and vegetables or peas with ham etc., everything well prepared. Oberfeldmeister Schobbert greeted us in the eating hall with the words "Good appetite!" after which, as hungry as wolves, we ate our fill. I had never had a healthier appetite! After eating we washed our plates and went to our rooms. Our free period for relaxation lasted from 3:00 PM to 5:00 PM, one hour of which had to be spent resting in bed. Rested and rejuvenated, we put on our sport clothes and enjoyed two hours of exercises in the fresh air. Returning to camp, we made the daily assembly for "flag parade" at sunset and went to our quarters. Already hungry again, we then ate supper. This evening meal consists of herring, potatoes, pastries covered with cold meat or small sausages ("hot dogs"!), bread and butter, coffee or tea and a sweet spread of various kinds. After this supper that lasted from 18:00 to 19:00, we were free from duty until 10:00 PM. German youth enjoys music, so many camp inhabitants played the guitar, mandolin, mouth harmonica and similar instruments. Others accompanied their music with group song. Many read newspapers and books. A few filled the time playing cards, conversed, wrote letters, studied or did some kind of work connected to their inclination or trade. At 10:00 it was "To bed!" From 22:05 PM onward I have nothing to report, because by then I had already fallen into a deep, splendidly rejuvenating, healthy sleep. I was roused out of this sleep at 5:00 AM the next morning when an energetic voice called me to new muscle work in the fresh air.

In this camp I also met 120 young people who wish to one day become leaders of work camps through greater performance. These are people who wish to continue the work of education toward folk community in this youth movement. They want to play a greater role in the important task of the construction of the New Germany in this manner. The new youth has fully understood the meaning, the purpose and the goal of this work service, which I have already named.

Anyone who makes the effort to check for himself, like I did, can see for himself how false the widely reputed impression abroad is that the German work service represents forced labor for the unemployment or even a punishment work for communists.

In the camps one finds young people from ALL segments of the population and from EVERY trade who have voluntarily reported for duty. For example, in the camp near Potsdam I met young students, young workers, young office clerks, mechanics, printers, factory workers, photographers, butchers, bookbinders, tailors, cooks and so forth. These young people had in fact come together here from all segments of the population. There were not just Another interesting news item: DEGUSSA, a subsidiary of IG Farben (which produced the de-lousing agent Zyklon B) is a sponsor of the Holohoax memorial in Berlin. The Jews were after a while shocked as they learned about the "NS past" of the company and immediately cancelled the work which had already begun. Degussa has even a fine motto: "the future is a tradition with us".

Also, General GÜNZEL is now attacked... His life, family etc. is analyzed, he's being insulted etc. etc. It must be indeed very frustrating for the regime to see such courageous people and learn that despite the Jewish media control MANY people see the real threat and share (at least partially!) our views! That's also what you said would "love" the Jews to hear: Despite the politicians' promises that "the whole nation" is against us, the resistance is still there!

100.000 people demonstrated against Schröder, only 12.000 were expected... Many people spontaneously joined the demo... This shows how the regime is dying... Amazingly, the number of 100.000 people is ONLY mentioned in the printed issue of today's "Süddeutsche Zeitung" not only proves the fact that there ARE different races with different structures (so much for "all people, are the same") but will also be the most devastating weapon as for example "you-already-know-who" already started a research on such ethnic weapons that kill Arabs...

You probably already heard of the murder case in Overath (Bavaria)... A lawyer, his wife and his daughter were killed... However, now the main suspect and his girlfriend have been found... He is an ex-mercenary has contacts to nationalist groups... New headline: Neo-nazi murders lawyer... You can imagine all the agitation articles in the newspapers; it seems so that ALL criminals are Neo-nazis... The regime is really trying to create such a link; in the last SPIEGEL-TV broadcast they reported about several fraud cases etc. and emphasized the fact that the people there have contacts to Neo-nazis... Despite the fact, that those companies had absolutely NO political background!

Interesting news item: Scientists are about to develop a genetic bomb that is able to kill only people with race-specific genetic data... This know WHO really does such crooked business, just to name coffee black-marketer-Bubis!!!) However, it's again an unseen and unbelievable wave of repression and propaganda one witnesses here... Another delicate fact in the Overath-case: The suspect was recently contacted by the Political Police!!! Now of course this fact is partially denied by the regime...

Another example for the infamous repression: The skinheads who've beaten up a foreigner have to pay him at least 38.000 EUR damages!!! Of course the comrades are not rich at all, and if they do not manage to pay the whole sum in a short time, the sum will rise by 50%!!! This sounds unbelievable, but it's true! Such "compensation" esp. for nationalists are completely new! Remember the incident where comrades who have been beaten up by Turks and were nearly killed? THEY DON'T GET ONE CENT!!! This is a perversion of justice!

OTTO GÜNSCHE, SS-Hauptsturmführer and the last Adjutant of the Führer, died in the age of 86 years on 2nd October this year... He was the person who had to burn his remains... Despite many offers and pressure to write a book or create a film he always refused to do so and lived in the Rhineland, in Lohmar...

Adjutant Otto Günsche and Adolf Hitler

I Work in a Work Service Camp

the middle or poorer classes, as to be expected, rather also many youths from rich families or from good positions. All of these young people from every conceivable position and with every conceivable education and training came together here with those who had been unemployed, united in an exemplary comradeship.

The WORK CAMP in which I worked was turned from a decaying barrel factory into a model camp for more than 200 work men. This was done by young people, for the greater part untrained workers, who used the most simple tools. I must admit that I had never seen a camp with such perfected order. Nor quarters that were so spotlessly clean and in addition to being so practical and utilitarian right down to the smallest detail as in this camp near Potsdam.

Because I worked there as a comrade, my work comrades recognized me as "one of them", so it was easy to get a true picture of the spirit prevailing there among them. There was no feeling of dissatisfaction or strife, rather a spirit of good comradeship among them all that made each of them satisfied, merry and happy. One youth, for example, a former sympathizer of the Social Democratic Party, told me that this institution of the work service gave him genuine understanding for comradeship and for the politics of National Socialism for the first time. Everyone I spoke with – and I questioned many in detail – expressed to me his satisfaction with the work service and with the living conditions in the camp. One immediately believes them, because one simply has to see the expression of satisfaction on their faces to see how free, happy, healthy and robust these young men have become. I have never seen such an incredibly healthy and light-hearted looking group of young people. Their appearance confirms their words. I also talked to a group of thirty young printers. They had given up their workplaces in printing shops in favor of married unemployed men. They had voluntarily made this sacrifice in the interest of the common good. After finishing their work service of six months they will again be hired by their former employers.

I want to also briefly mention here what is actually self-evident. During their instructional courses they also receive a perfect schooling in National Socialist spirit in addition to practical instructions for their later life. They also learn old German customs and cultural history. In the eating and meeting rooms one sees the emblems of the swastika and of the spade, which is the symbol of the work service. The walls of the rooms are decorated with runes shields based on patterns from the old Germanic eras.

State Secretary Konstantin Hierl organized and led the Reich Work Service. This National Socialist formation provided jobs and daily bread.

After my exact statements nobody can deny my right and ability to give a fact-based, objective JUDGMENT OF THE WORK SERVICE.

Based on my OWN EXPERIENCE during my visits and inspections and finally on my participation as a simple worker in a work service camp, I wish to say that this work service is masterfully organized by State Secretary HIERL. This is another example of the great accomplishments of Germany's Führer and Chancellor not just for the benefit of the New Germany, rather also for the good of all of humanity. I can state without hesitation that this German work service is an example for the achievement of a just social compensation. This example should be copied in many other countries of the world that today suffer under constantly recurring social unrest, because they are not what the New Germany – often maligned – is: A UNITED NATION OF BROTHERS WHO – INSTEAD OF WEAKENING THEMSELVES IN CLASS STRUGGLE – WORK TOGETHER AS COMRADES FOR PEACEFUL RECONSTRUCTION!

Letters-to-the-Editor

Harassment in Frankfurt

My wife was recently in Germany and Hungary. On the return trip she was detained in Frankfurt when she tried to book a flight. Two civilian dressed men asked her identity and passport. (She is a U.S.-citizen, but had a Hungarian passport which is good for all countries.) She was told that she is an "illegal immigrant and will be deported back to Hungary". They confiscated her ticket and passport and asked her to follow them. They told her not to leave the airport until further notice. But she talked to German lady who suggested she go to the American Embassy and get an emergency U.S.- passport. Thank God she listened to her and took a taxi to the Embassy. The Embassy administrator didn't find her citizenship evidence, so my wife asked her to call me. She did and I faxed the citizenship certificate back. Five minutes later she had her U.S. passport in her hand.

When she got back to the airport, one of these civilian-dressed persons approached her and asked where she had been. She told him that she had gotten the U.S. passport they wanted. He was very surprised and angry! How did she do that? My wife got angry and told him, "I always told you I am an American citizen, you didn't believe me! So stop your harassment. I want to go back to the USA! I will never come back to this country!" He responded: "Have a good trip, Ma'am."

I think they got confused by her name (I am well known to the enemy as a NSDAP/AO comrade!) and needed time from the Bonn NKVD to get more information in order to clear - or arrest (!) - her. She had to spend 27 hours in the airport (including the short trip to the US Embassy) instead of the fifty minutes originally planned! (Ironically, she had a swastika necklace with her, but was not bothered about it.)

My wife acted bravely and I am very proud of her. She did a good job and defeated the troublemakers. - U.S.-based Hungarian comrade

Jews Create Their Enemies

I think it was the Jew Paul Spiegel (president of the German Jewish Council) who said that nobody is born a Nazi. That is certainly so, because I was not. On the contrary, misguided by the Jew-controlled brainwashing for German national self-hate, I believed that "education", because I could not imagine why anybody on earth would construct such an immense building of lies for several decades to exploit and enslave a nation like the Jews have done in Germany. However, I always had nationalist feelings.

Searching for more information through personal talks with "eye-witnesses", books, other literature and the internet - and just observing actual events (as Truman says on your web-site, the Jews are the best recruiters for the National Socialist movement!)- I was confronted with a massive amount of information with the opposite content. After carefully reading, checking, counterchecking and evaluating this information for four years, I could proudly state: the Jews have one more vehement enemy! I have become a passionate National Socialist!

A lot of this useful information came from your web-site. You know about the state-terrorism against nationalists in Germany! It cannot be described what you and your work mean to our movement and to all the comrades in spirit who must hide their opinions in order to avoid repression and prosecution in Germany. You are the motor, the heart and the center of the National Socialist movement in the whole world. And if one day the citizens of all Aryan nations come together again as volunteers in the Waffen-SS to fight against the Jewish parasites, this will be mainly your merit.

An old friend of mine knew Jochen Peiper very well. He was with him in the LAH-SS and often meets other veterans of especially the Waffen-SS divisions LAH, Das Reich and Totenkopf. Like all of these men he knew, of course, that Jochen Peiper had been murdered, but he did not know the details until I gave him a printout from your web-site. He was shocked to tears and new hatred arose when he brought this printout to the next veterans meeting. I can proudly tell that knowledge of the world-wide fight for our ideals gave them new hope to these old comrades, hope for we "Grossdeutsches Reich" in the future.

Of course, I support the NSDAP/AO. I will send you money from time to time and do some translation work.

Germany is on the ground now. I do not think it will rise again without the help from Aryan comrades around the world. We have a Jewish dictatorship and sincere and honest people in Germany are afraid. – As I write these lines our Secretary of Defense, Peter Struck, has just fired General Günzel, the commanding general of the KSK-Elite-Troops. Boob Tube in Spain, too

This year I am sending an extra 100,00 Euro donation. We are truly being invaded! Madrid and Barcelona are teaming with hundreds of thousands of brown and black creatures. The average person fails to react, because he is stupefied by the mass media. – Madrid, Spain

Lost War?

After 15 years I lost my job thanks to the failing economy. I moved south to live with my grandchildren. Down here it's like we never won the war with Mexico. We just give it all back to them! – Florida

Latvian Heroes Remembered

A common cemetery for the Latvian legionnaires who fought with the German Reich against communism was opened with a solemn ceremony on September 27, 2003. It was covered by national television and radio. Former legionnaires, their family members and followers, and many Latvian political and religious leaders were present. "The whole of Latvia will see that an old sanctuary has appeared in our country", stated Nikolay Romanovskis, chairman of the National Warriors Association. – Latvia

Foretaste

Specials thanks for comrade Schaerffenberg for his excellent book, "Hitler: Bungling Amateur or Military Genius?" A little foretaste for our enemies how the history books will look after the final victory!

I'd like to add that during the Bolshevik invasion of Finland in 1939-1940 Roosevelt sold to the Soviet Union strategic goods like metals, machines, aeroplane components and fuel. In public, Roosevelt pretended to be a friend of Finland and "democracy", but in secret he did everything for Soviet victory over Christian and democratic Finland.

Funny that the Third Reich is called an "aggressive, imperialistic military power" and a "threat" to every possible country in the world. The USA nowadays has soldiers in fifty countries, in occupied Germany alone 80,000. She does pretty much anything she wants to – if Israel wants!

One example of the "chosen people's" is the sheer number of professorial chairs of Holocaust on the USA alone, over 300! That is what one can call the pollution of intellectual life in the USA. Today the USA occupies large parts of the global...and Israel occupies the USA! – Finland

Social Security - for Whites, too?

You have a fantastic site! You will hear more from me in the future!

I was disabled and lost my job earlier this year, but had to fight for months to get disability payments from social security. – Tennessee

White Pride

I appreciate the fine quality of the National Socialist literature you carry. The NSDAP/AO carries literature not available anywhere else. It is information the White people in America and across the world desperately need to survive.

Please send information on membership in the NSDAP/AO. I am a White man who is very proud of his European heritage (German, English and Irish).

Hail Victory! – Lansing, Michigan

gunned and down to their last supplies, they fought off the tough Australians for more than two weeks.

On January 7, the British XIII Corps captured Tobruk within 24 hours. By then, the Italian 10th Army had more than 100,000 men taken prisoner. The Italians put up stiff resistance at various strongholds, such as the Mechili fort and near Derna, but the tide had turned against them. Efforts to block the enemy advance toward Tripolitania at El Aghelia were cut-off by the 7th Armoured Division, which reached the coast 70 miles south of Benghazi. Refusal to obey Mussolini's orders by maintaining the momentum of the offensive had cost Graziani dear.

In late January, the entire North African Campaign was on the verge of complete collapse, when the Italians suddenly and quite unexpectedly turned the tables on their pursuers. With the reversals of his desert forces during the previous month, Mussolini realized that, together with Graziani's insubordination, the 10th Army suffered for lack of sufficient armor. He moved quickly to organize a Brigata Corazzata Speciale, or "Special Armored Brigade", of M-11 tanks operating in squads accompanied by infantry specializing in anti-tank weapons and tactics.

In hardly more than a month, the Duce dispatched this improvised force to General Valentino Babini, in Libya, just in time to confront the massed assault of 177 Matilda tanks and other armored vehicles. During a single engagement, on January 24, 1941, the badly out-numbered Fascist soldiers of the BCS quickly knocked out and disabled the first 21 enemy tanks. The rest turned around on their treads, and beat a hasty retreat toward Cairo. Mussolini, Babini and their men had parried General Wavell's anticipated "death blow" to the Italians, who until then, were losing ground forces on a debilitating scale.

These huge numbers of prisoners, often taken by relatively small British units, helped foster Allied propaganda characterizing the Italians as cowards, or, at any rate, unwilling, unenthusiastic participants in "Mussolini's war". Actually, most Italians fought with unrivaled courage and skill. When, for example, new R.A.F. pilots arrived in Egypt with their state-of-the-art Spitfires, they laughed at the antiquated-looking bi-planes of the Regia Aeronautica. But their commanders sternly brought them up sharp by warning, "Your planes may be faster than theirs, but if you ever get into a dog-fight with them, they'll kill you!"

As an example, a Spitfire pilot reported after his encounter with a Fiat CR-32 Falco, "I dived to attack. As I opened fire, he half-rolled very tightly, and I was completely unable to hold him, so rapid were his maneuvers" (Adams, p.74).

In its assessment of the fighting across Libya and Egypt, the British VIIIth Army newspaper concluded that "the Black Shirt and Bersaglieri Divisions were often comparable in courage and fighting spirit to the best troops in the Campaign." These Fascist elements had fought with extraordinary heroism, especially when the battle had gone against them, while most of the other Italian soldiers had been trained and led, as was Marshal Graziani himself, by the hostile, even pro-British aristocracy in the House of Savoy.

The North African Campaign that could have concluded after just four or five months in an Italian victory, had only the Duce's orders been followed, would go on for two more years, killing many thousands more men, and eventually climaxing in an Axis withdrawal.

Tragic as these events were for Italy, the Fuehrer began to regard North Africa as a great, strategic trap for the British. He observed how they devoted all their energies, even while hard-pressed during the Battle of Britain, to protect their holdings in Egypt. North Africa might divert the British from interfering in his up-coming invasion of the Soviet Union. They could be induced to weaken themselves in operations involving minimal German forces. But to waste the British out of strength in the desert Hitler needed the most daring, innovative and dauntless Wehrmacht commander available.

On February 12, 1941, Erwin Rommel landed at Tripoli with just two divisions---one light, the other Panzer---that formed the Deutsche Afrika Korps. He arrived just in time to prevent the enemy's total conquest of North Africa. Less than a week before, General Wavell, recovering from his defeat at the hands of the Brigata Corazzato Speciale, destroyed 80 Italian tanks and captured seven generals at Benghazi. Worse came the next day, when he took 120 tanks, 200 artillery pieces and 20,000 troops.

Undaunted by these otherwise catastrophic reversals, Rommel went over on the offensive with an imaginative flair rarely encountered in warfare. In little more than two months, he made Wavell give up all the gains won from the Italians. During the next two years, Rommel led the British on a merry chase through the desert, often deceiving them with unorthodox ploys.

For example, when confronted by a numerically overwhelming force of Australians, New Zealanders, South Africans, and Indians, he dragged farming implements behind his tanks. The resultant clouds of sand were so great, the enemy were fooled into believing that they were opposed by a gigantic Panzer army, and called off their attack.

Rommel's daring was exemplified in the Battle of Knightsbridge, between June 11 and 13, when his 124 Panzers audaciously attacked 248 British tanks, trapping and destroying most of them. Suddenly, the main supply route for the 50th and 1st South African Divisions was threatened, and they fled toward Egypt. In every engagement---either wriggling out of an encirclement, or spear-heading a sudden assault where it was least expected---the Afrika Korps seemed unbeatable.

What made the Campaign so frustrating for the British was its lack of real territorial goals. Rommel's chief objective was less the capture of Cairo or Suez, than wearing out the enemy's land forces, to keep them away from the European Continent at relatively low cost to the Axis. He could go on racing around the desert indefinitely, so long as his supplies held out.

To keep him well-equipped was the chief responsibility of the Italian Navy. Whatever damage had been done to Italy's reputation by Graziani's failures in Egypt was more than adequately repaired by the unswerving courage demonstrated by Mussolini's sailors aboard the convoys to North Africa. Relentlessly savaged from the air by anti-shipping bombers of the R.A.F. and under the sea by Royal Navy submarines, Italian freighters pushed on against terrible losses.

But they were the life-line of the Afrika Korps, fueling its non-stop victories, despite everything the British could throw at them. From June, 1942, however, Italian sinkings began to increase dramatically. And the Luftwaffe spared additional aircraft to protect Axis convoys, which were invariably intercepted by the enemy.

Rommel's capture of Tobruk on the 21st bagged him large stocks of materiel that made up for dwindling supplies, but this windfall could not be expected to last him for long. Thus well provisioned, although only temporarily, he decided on capturing Egypt and putting an end to the North African Campaign, before his supply problems became too critical.

Thanks to Ultra, the British knew long in advance of his next attack, but their long series of defeats rendered them too weak to oppose it. The Royal Navy evacuated Alexandria, where port authorities prepared to blow up the harbors at a moment's notice. In Cairo, British Army headquarters staff burned classified papers and prepared for a retreat into Palestine. But Italian losses at sea mounted, and Rommel's advance ground to a halt.

Mussolini had good reason to suspect that House of Savoy traitors in the Navy were passing the sailing times and courses of his convoys to the enemy. Even long after the war, historians concluded either espionage or treason was responsible. Not until the 1960s was the so-called "Ultra Secret" revealed. Having broken all the Axis military codes, Allied commanders were simultaneously reading the top secret orders of their German and Italian counterparts. In the beginning, however, Ultra was often too slow to keep up with the rapid, last minute changes inherent in desert warfare, and even missed reporting many important Italian convoys.
